"It may be necessary to inform the reader that Mr. James Hall, of Cincinnati, has lately published a work entitled 'Statistics of the West at the close of 1836.' It is not the purpose of this Appeal to animadvert on the body of that work...it is intended to notice some of the remarks contained in its preface...[which] is almost exclusively devoted to severe reflections, levelled against an article in the Western Messenger, for May 1836, Butler's History of Kentucky, and the North American Review, for July 1836." -- p. Plates represent early work of pioneers in American lithography.

Color washed in by hand.

This publication composed of 1st 9 pts. Originally announced there would be 10 pts. (80 plates) to be issued monthly. Later an 11th pt. planned (an historical and biographical description of the Indians). The 10th pt., long thought not to exist, was published but contains pictures by other artists. The 11th pt. is not known to have ever been published. Cf J. F. McDermott. Magazine Antiques. 1947 May. Vol. 51, p. 322. and Minnesota History. 1952 Spring. Vol. 33, p. 20-21.

Some portraits with signature: J. Barincou.

Tribes represented are: Sioux (Dakota), Menominee, Potawatomi, Chippewa (Ojibwa), Winnebago, Fox, Sauk (Sac), Shawnee, Miami, Iowa, and Ottawa.

Per descriptions on each plate, majority of drawings done at following treaties: Prairie du Chien, 1825 [Treaty with the Sioux, etc., 1825]; Fond du Lac, 1826 and 1827 [Treaty with the Chippewa, 1826]; Massinewa (Mississinewa), Indiana, 1827 [Treaty with the Potawatomi, Oct. 16, 1826]; Fort Wayne, 1827 [Treaty with the Miami, Oct. 23, 1826]; Green Bay, 1827 and Butte des Morts, 1827 [Treaty with the Chippewa, etc., 1827]. Names in brackets are those used in : Indian Affairs: Laws and Treaties. Washington: Government Printing Office, 1904. Green Bay was an earlier stop before Butte des Morts.

Inaccuracies occur in descriptions accompanying portraits.

Employed by the Bureau of Indian Affairs, Lewis made 4 separate excursions: 1) Prairie de Chien, Aug 1825 with Gov. Cass; 2) Fond du Lac (Lake Superior), Summer 1826 with Gov. Cass and T. L. McKenney; 3) treaties in Indiana with the Potawatomi and the Miami, Oct 1826 with Gov. Cass; and 4) Butte des Morts on Fox River in Wisconsin Aug 1827 with Gov. Cass and T. L. McKenney. Cf J. F. McDermott. Magazine Antiques. 1947 May. Vol. 51, pp. 320-321.

Three scenes included among portraits: View of the Great Treaty held at Prairie du Chien, 1825; View of the Butte des Morts Treaty Ground, 1827; and Scene of a Pipe Dance and a Tomahawk Dance of the Chippewa.

Earliest painting dated 1823, latest 1833, and 3 without dates, but majority of paintings sketched in the field (1825-1827) and finished in Detroit, 1827-1833. Printing on some plates state that painting was done on location.

Other artists preceded Lewis in the painting of Native Americans (Chester Harding and Charles Bird King), but J. O. Lewis was the first to paint\draw them in their natural environment. None of the original paintings exist. Cf. J. F. McDermott. Magazine Antiques. 1947 May. Vol. 51, pp. 320-321 and J. D. Horan. McKenney-Hall Portrait Gallery of American Indians. 1972.

- The Aboriginal Port-Folio represents the first attempt at a collection of portraits of the North American Indian, preceding McKenney and Hall's History of the Indian Tribes of North America, and the works of George Catlin. It is the earliest effort of several of the pioneers of American lithography and color printing and it is considered the rarest of art publications about the western Indians.
- About the Port-Folio Henry R. Schoolcraft wrote: "Altogether it is to be regarded as a valuable contribution... He has painted the Indian lineaments on the spot, and is entitled to patronage -- not as supplying all that is desirable, or practicable, perhaps, but as a first and original effort. We should all cherish such a work."

This Aboriginal Port-Folio represents the first business venture by both George Lehman and Peter S. Duval. Their association during the years 1835 and 1836 produced this work as well as lithographs for McKenney and Hall's great History of the Indian Tribes of North America. George Lehman was born in Lancaster County, Pa. An "extremely competent artist," he "painted, engraved, aqua-tinted and handcolored a number of views of Pennsylvania towns that are well known." The lithographer Peter S. Duval ("one of the most important of them all" -- Peters) was brought from France in 1831 by the firm of Childs and Inman, who also employed George Lehman. Cephas G. Childs, regarded as one of the outstanding American lithographers, and Henry Inman, painter and engraver (who incidentally contributed portraits to McKenney and Hall's work), produced lithographs which were regarded as among the best of the era. While in the employ of Childs and Inman, 1831-35, Duval began to gather around him a group of first rate lithographers who were to work with him in later years. He is regarded as a pioneer of color printing and produced the first specimen of lithotint "Grandma's Pet." Peter S. Duval and his group occupy one of the most important places in American lithography. Among the later productions of Duval's company are James Simpson's "Journal of a Military Reconnaissance." Herndon and Gibbon's "Explorations of the Valley of the Amazon." and many other government publications; De Smet's "Letters and Sketches" ...etc. (RMW)

Notes: Disbound, each leaf enclosed between museum Mylar sheets, all contained in a cloth box. Lithograph title page with colored vignette.

Minor defects on a few plates.

First edition. Extremely rare in any of its parts. This collection comprises 53 of the 72 to 80 plates that bibliographers say were issued. Howes states that the title page, which is present here, was issued with the last of the ten parts, however it was unknown to field.

Field and Bennett admire the portraits for their authenticity. They were done in the field, as were the Indian pictures by Catlin and Bodmer. Little of Lewis' biography is known, although he must have accompanied Gov. Cass to various treaty talks with the Indians between 1825 and 1827, since each plate names and dates a treaty at which the portrait was painted. The locations include Prairie du Chien, Green Bay, Fond du Lac, Massinewa (Indiana), and Fort Wayne.

Eighteen Chippewa chiefs are represented in the collection along with nine Potawatomes, eight Maimis, seven Winnebagoes, three Sioux, two Monominies, and one each of the Shawnee, Sac,

Fox and Iowa; and one plate depicts the Pipe and Tomahawk dances of the Chippewas. Little Corw III, the famous Minnesota Sioux, is shown in a feather headdress as he was painted at Prairie du Chien in 1825, and the handsome Black Hawk of the Sacs appears with an expression of haughty sadness as he was painted at Detroit in the spring of 1833 en route to Washington as a federal prisoner after his defeat in the Black Hawk War.

These portraits relate directly to one of the epochal events of American history, their having been painted on the very occasions of treaties that sent their sitters into permanent exile beyond the Mississippi, which was the great Indian Removal of the Jackson era."

Lewis, James Otto. The North American aboriginal port-folio by J.O. Lewis. Drawn on stone by J. H. Bufford. New-York: Published from the London edition by J. P. Callender, 162 Nassau St., 1838.

31 p.: 1-4: preliminary matter,; 5-31: 12 unnumbered chapters treating describing the life, character, and costume of each Indian chief depicted in the 12 illustrations.

It is not a salesman's dummy but a complete book and contains 12 unnumbered hand-colored lithographic illustrations, which are not a part of the collation.

This appears to be an unrecorded variation on the many versions of Lewis's publication (see NUC-pre-'56, v. 330, pp. 521-522). It seems to constitute 2 parts of the 12 parts with 6 illustrations each (=72 plates) that made up the complete work.

Notes from Correspondence - Winterthur:

Our copy was bound by a previous owner (blue marbelized paper, leather label.... There is no evidence of who such a previous owner might have been, nor are there any annotations. I would say that it's in good condition overall.

Notes from Correspondence - Illinois State Historical Library:

The cover has red leather on the spine, which wraps around front and back cover for approx. 1 inch. The corners have red leather triangles. Thin gold lines are on the red leather trim. The spine is mostly deteriorated, but appears to have had the title in gold letters. The front and back cover is cloth with a tiny yellow print on a dark red background.

Also, a Vocabulary of the Algic, or Chippeway Language Formed in Part, and As Far As It Goes, Upon the Basis of One Furnished by the Hon. Albert Gallatin. Ornamented With Twenty-Nine Engravings of Lake Superior, and Other Scenery, Indian Likenesses, Costumes, &c. [Reference Description]. Baltimore: Published by Fielding Lucas, junr, 1827.

Notes: Notes from Field: The author was for many years superintendent of Indian affairs at Washington and was brought in constant association with the principal men of the nations and tribes which sent representatives to the seat of government. In this tour he formed a more intimate association with the great mass of the Indian population, and was able to present much valuable information regarding it. The vocabulary occupies the last seven pages of the volume.

The last two volumes have each a table of plates numbered with the text. At page 45 commences, "An Essay on the History of the North American Inaidns by James Hall," which occupies the remainder of the volume.

The work is one of the most costly and important ever published on the American Indians. The plages are accurate portraits of celebrated chiefs, or of characteristic individuals of the race; and are colored with care, to faithfully represent their features and costumes.
