

LibParlor Online Learning : An open source curriculum for LIS researchers

Introduction

LPOL is a free and openly-available curriculum to support library and information science professionals in developing research skills. This is a "living" curriculum, in that it will continue to be updated and refreshed as the need arises.

LPOL Curriculum

The LPOL Curriculum is comprised of 6 courses containing 3-5 lessons full of valuable readings and practical, reflective activities

- COURSE 1 WHO ARE YOU AS A RESEARCHER?
- COURSE 2 THE LIS RESEARCH PROCESS & METHODOLOGIES
- COURSE 3 PROJECT PLANNING
- COURSE 4 WRITING & EDITING
- COURSE 5 PUBLICATION & REVIEW PROCESS
- COURSE 6 COMPILING YOUR FINAL LPOL PROJECT RESEARCH PLAN

Cultivate Your Research Identity & Build Community with LibParlor Online Learning (LPOL)

Additional LPOL Resources!

Learner Experiences

Engage with LPOL

As an individual:

- Complete the entire curriculum beginning to end
- Identify useful courses or lessons and focus on those

As a Community:

- Host a Researcher Community Bingo event using LPOL's free resources
- Begin an informal learning cohort at your institution
- Have LPOL creators lead workshops for you and your colleagues

Authors & Affiliations

Nimisha Bhat | University of Cincinnati
Hailley Fargo | Northern Kentucky University
Chelsea Heinbach | University of Nevada, Las Vegas
Charissa Powell | University of Delaware

