Dear Mr. Forbes:

The VC pictures and plans are enclosed here in case you might want to devote an entire issue of Forbes Magazine to the "City of the Future" and include all the pictures and floor plans of VC. In the past, publications wrote mostly about me and just a little about VC, illustrated with only one or two pictures. I suspect that your typical readers might be interested in a complete set of plans with all the pictures which physically could be placed on the page size of your magazine, and only include my name, address and phone number. Also you might like to include the VC Book Text which is of "Ma & Pa" quality. So you might want to refine it or even rewrite it.

I would welcome you or any of your representatives to come here and see the entire VC exhibit, which consists of murals, models, floor plans and many other items. They do need a lot of explaining.

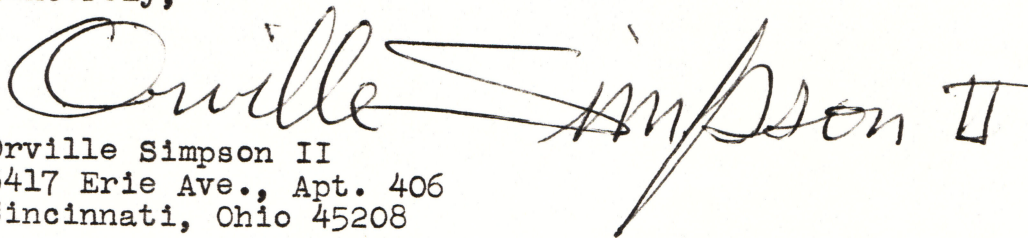

In the Forbes, July 24, 1989 issue the feature article "The World's Billionaires" is of particular interest to me. Many of these billionaires might be the people to help in various ways in bringing VC into existence. Therefore I need to be able to communicate with them. I would greatly appreciate it if you could send me all their addresses and phone numbers for both home and office.

I intend to give my plans of VC free of charge to any qualified developer interested in building VC.

If the developer should raise money by selling stocks or bonds to the general public, then I would buy some of these stocks or bonds.

I am looking forward to hear from you.

Sincerely,

Orville Simpson II
